He Urges the Knights to Abandon Strikes and Make Education Their Motte. WILKESBARRE, March 28 .- Master Work-

Knights of Labor, in which he urgently requests that education be made the future motto of the order, and that strikes be entirely done away with. Mr. Powderly confesses that the Knights of Labor strikes have never been successful, and that the time to call a halt has

What combination of hungry men could fight a battle against a combination of dollars? When a workman ceases to earn money his stomach feels it, and unless charity is given he starves. If our membership of 500,000 is instructed in the full meaning of the preamble o the Knight of Labor we will do a work which all the strikes of ages, had they all proved successful, could not do. Educate our people; teach them what it is that causes depressions; teach them what is contained in our preamble; have them discuss it, sliting out that which is good in it and ex shanging that which is not so good for somathing better. How will this be done? Not by sliting down until the very life-breed of labor. good for something better. How will this be done? Not by striking down until the very lifeblood of labor is drawn to the last drop. We must have legislation which will compel individuals and corporations to transact business on a basis of real property, dollars and cents, instead of what the world calls paper credit or fictitious values. How can this be done? By whom will it be done? Not by strikes; not by wasting our energies on the line of abuse of each other. It cannot be done by men who have no higher conception of knighthood and citizenship than to expose themselves and families to the pangs of hunger in suicidal strikes. It is argued that strikes do good. So does a fire. Strikes do good! Go to the coal fields of Pennsylvania and count the victims; go through the Lehigh region and count the sufferers; go into the homes of the brave, heroic men who waged the unequal battle, and ask of the wives and children you will find there if strikes do good, and note the answer. Let the ones who have felt the pangs of hunger testify. Do not go to those who, standing far from the scene of conflict, will say strikes do good. Unfortunately for labor, men in position are prone to yield to clamor too casily.

strikes do good. Unfortunately for labor, men in position are prone to yield to clamor too casily.

"When a committee of enthusiastic men wait on the head of a labor society and say we must strike now or never, our chances are good, we will win in a week, and the man who opposes us is a coward, he is apt to yield and give consent when he has nothing else to give. The general Master Workman has received his share of censure for not encouraging certain strikes. He never did encouragejnastrike, and never will do so, nor will he ever vota to order a strike until every known remedy short of a surrender of the manhood of the men engaged has been tried. Was he right? Is he right? We have had strikes after strikes, and what good have they done? Here is an illustration: A man is receiving $2.50 a day. He wants a 10 per cent. advance, which would raise his wages to $2.75 a day. His demand is refused, and he stops work, remains out a month—two, three or four months—and then returns to work at the old figures. At the end of the first month he has lost in wages at $2.50 a day, averaging twenty-six working days to the month, just $85; at the end of three months, $195; and at the end of the fourth month, $256. What has he gained? Nothing."

Leading American Clothiers,

MULDOON DOWNS KARKEEK.

It Took Him 13 Minutes to do it, and it Cost Parson Davies $16. It was simply a question how much "Parson" Davies would lose, for all were agreed that Jack Karkeek, the champion wrestler in the Cornish style, could not be downed in five minutes. Williamsburg was excited, for the sporting population knew that Karkeek lasted out the limit of fifteen minutes on Monday night and won $20.

Last night Champion Muldoon was to try again to down Karkeek, and there was to be no limit to the time. The offer was that every minute over five that Karkeek kept his shoulders from the ground he was to receive $2, and that if he succeeded in downing Muldoon the Parso would pay him $100. The Grand Theatre was packed, and the variety performers were clustered in the wings. Muldoon, with his legs kicking a long bath robe, stepped to the footlights and requested that no personal the officials to wheel sleeping and dining cars to exposed points for the accommodation of the deputy sheriffs.

The new men will be put to work to-morrow night, under heavy guard, and every striker will be ordered off the company's property.
Thus far the strikers have made no effort to obstruct the movement of trains, but it is asseried by those who enjoy their confidence that the new men will not have an easy time performing the duties assigned them by the company. "You can applaud or hiss if you like." he said, "for you have paid your money for that privilege, but you have no right to use bad language, especially as there are ladies in the language, especially as there are ladies in the house."

The crowd cheered uproariously, and the half dozen women smilled and were flattered. The Parson was chosen as timekeeper for Muldoon, Mike Boden performed that effice for Kaskeek, and Martin Dempsey, the wrestling brother of the Nonpareil, was referee. The hand shut up and the wrestlers took of their robes and bowed. They were naked to the waist. The broad thick body of Muldoon with ridges and hills of museles moving about, and the smaller but wenderfully powerful body of Raskeek, aroused all the sporting enthusiasm of Williamsburgh.

The house went wild and howled in admiration. Karkeek has been following the show around, and accepting the challenges to wrestle with Muldoon and "Strangler" Lewis. He has done nothing else ever since the Parson started this kind of an entertainment, and ho has earned about $50 a week, and is gradually becoming very unpopular with the Parson. The wrestling was the Graeco-Roman style, in which no tripping was allowed, and neither man could take a hold below the waist.

They shook hands, and in the twinkling of an eye Muldoon whirled Karkeek around, and throwing his powerful arms about his waist, lifted him off the stage and banged him down. He did this at intervals of two minutes until Karkeek fairly rattled, and was glad when Muldoon, by a clever trick, forced both of his shoulders to the canvas and won the match in 13 minutes. Karkeek collected from the Parsons $16, and was happy.

performing the duties assigned them by the company.

The work of the Burlington road is progressing slowly. Fifteen new men were accepted this morning, making a force of about fifty switchmen new at work. The officials say that by to-morrow the full working force of the Chicago yards, 150 switchmen, will have been secured. There were thirteen switch engines at work this morning. Two heavy stock trains arrived and were taken to the stock yards, and two engines were at work trying to raise the blockade in the lumber district. Some headway was also made in moving the freight which had accumulated at the depots, three trains having been sent out this morning. An official of the company says that their Eastern agents have got together a full force of switchmen from Reading, Philadelphia, New York, and other cities, and they are now on their way here. They will arrive here to-morrow morning. here to-morrow morning.

A despatch from St. Joseph says that this morning all the switchmen on the "Q" read there, thirty-five in number, went out. Not an engine wheel is now being turned there. The excuse the men gave with a silver of the fillinois State Railroad Commissioners to-day were waited upon here by a committee of business men from Aurors with a complaint that the Burlington road was employing incompetent engineers. The Commissioners agreed to hear witnesses at a special investigation on Tuesday next. HE WILL NOT APPEAL FOR LIFE.

They Quarrelled and Separated, and he Was Mr. Higgins to be a Partner in the Killed Himself. The Brooklyn Board of Aldermen on Montor Henry Baerer of 749 Broadway for the Soldlers' and Sailors' Monument, for the erection of which in the City Hall Park an appropriation of $100,000 had been made. An injunction, however, is to be applied for to-day in the Supreme Court, to restrain Mr. Baerer in the Supreme Court, to restrain Mr. Baeres from beginning work on the monument. Proceedings have been begun by Gen. Horatio C. King on the part of John W. Wiggins, Jr., a member of the Board of Education, who says it was through his influence in having Mr. Baerer's plan indorsed by prominent members of the Grand Army that the plan was finally approved by the Board of Alderman. He also says that Mr. Baerer now repudistes an agreement of copartnership in the enterprise which had been entered into between them. He now proposes by means of an injunction to prevent Mr. Baerer signing any contract for the monument until he is made a partner in the prospective profits.
